

RIDING SHOTGUN

Your weekend of relaxation in Shortsville was a bit short of the relaxation part. You need a change of scenery. So, you sign on to ride shotgun with the Wells Fargo Stage Coach Company. Fortune has smiled on you, as you've been partnered with Charlie Parkhurst, a veritable legend among coach drivers.

COACH CRIMINALS CAPTURED

The coming of spring means stepping up the number of coach runs. Unfortunately, it also means a potential increase in the number of stage robberies. Today, the telegraph man just delivered a message to your sheriff's office, the local stage has been hijacked on its way from Shortsville and Manchester, and the coach contains over a million dollars in the Wells Fargo's cash box! Now you've got to stop the coach and its hijackers, then fight for the lives of the crew and recover the money!

DRUNKEN DESPARADOS DISPENSED

The silver in the mines around the Red Cloud Mine are both a boon and a bane to the local towns around them. The silver yields wages, of which many are spent prudently and wisely for the needs of a frontier family and their homestead. But those wages can be the target of misdirected miscreants. On your way to deliver the payroll, you are held up by group of desparados who bolstered their bravado with bourbon. Sure they aren't thinkin' straight, you see an opportunity to turn the tables and take the troubled team to task.

OUTBACK OUTING OUSTED!

While laying next to the smoldering campfire, taking your rest during the overnight stage run from Canandaigua to Buffalo, you hear the knocking of beetles around you. As part of their calling for mates they tap their abdomens on a hard surface to create a Tap-Tap sound. You listen and hear, Tap, Tap, Tap-Tap, Click Click Click, Tap, Tap and at that moment the hair on your neck goes up... Those aren't beetles around the camp that are here to serenade you to a sound sleep.
